PAGEANT WAS SPECTACULAR

Large Crowd Witnesses Crowning Event of Commencement Festivities.

An audience which crowded the seating capacity of the large open-air auditorium on the library hill was present Tuesday evening to witness the annual pageant by the school children of the city. Threatening weather which finally resulted in rain did not seem to diminish the attendance to any great degree.

The pageant given this year was "America, Yesterday and Today," a spectacular production in which more than three hundred of the school children of the city participated. The entire program was faultlessly rendered, and the spontaneity and unity with which the children played their parts was indicative of most excellent and painstaking direction. The third episode of the pageant was given in an abbreviated form on account of the rain which began falling at the beginning of the episode, all of the folk dances which had been so carefully drilled for having to be omitted.

The entire pageant was under the able direction of Miss Hazel Tornher, who has been a student in Peabody and World-Belmont College. The ease with which even the smallest of the tots who took part performed the difficult drills allotted to them showed an infinite amount of skill and patience from an able directress. The fact that the entire pageant was prepared in less than three weeks—only sixteen rehearsals being had—speaks well for the ability of Miss Tornher.

It was given under the auspices of the Parent-Teachers Association and many of the members of this body gave their time and attention to the various details connected with its production. All who were thus instrumental are to be heartily congratulated upon its success.

As a prelude to the evening's performance the Hickman Concert Band rendered a short program which was highly appreciated. Only half of the program which it was intended that the band should render could be given on account of the rain.

Every part of the evening's program was flawless and the hearty applause given every number showed conclusively the audience's appreciation.

CRAB-BROWN.

A wedding which came as a surprise to their many friends was that of Harry Crain and Miss Maurine Brown on last Friday afternoon at three o'clock. Accompanied by Mrs. George Hipstern, sister of the bride, Miss Kittle Creed and Luby Roper, they motored to Union City, where the ceremony was performed by the pastor of the First Baptist Church of that city.

The bride is the third daughter of Mrs. C. M. Brown, of this city, and she is a charming and accomplished young lady, her many attractive traits having won for her many friends among the younger set of the city.

The groom is one of the publishers of The Courier, and is a young man of unusual ability. He is a graduate of Bethel College, at Russellville, Ky., receiving his A. B. degree in the class of 1920. He is the son of the Rev. and Mrs. H. M. Crain, now of Hopkinsville, but formerly of Hickman, where Mr. Crain was pastor of the First Baptist Church.

Returning Sunday afternoon, the newlyweds were the honorees of a delightful six o'clock dinner at the home of the bride's mother, at which a few relatives and close friends were present.

For the present the happy couple are making their home at the LaCade Hotel but are planning to go to housekeeping in the near future.

BISHOP WOODCOCK HERE SUNDAY

The Right Reverend Charles E. Woodcock, Bishop of Kentucky, preached to a large and attentive audience at St. Paul's Church at both the morning and evening services Sunday. A large attendance is always assured whenever Bishop Woodcock is to speak here as he is one of the nation's most fluent speakers, and Sunday sermons held his audiences in rapt attention throughout.

EXCURSION MONDAY NIGHT.

The Steamer G. W. Hill, one of the most palatial excursion boats on the river was here Monday, making an excursion trip as advertised, leaving here at nine o'clock and returning at 11:30. A large crowd made the trip and dancing was enjoyed, an excellent orchestra furnishing the music.

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Grant and children, Mary Elizabeth and Joseph, and Mr. and Mrs. Ellis Wickersham and daughter, Winifrede, of Mayfield, came Friday to visit their parents, the Rev. and Mrs. A. S. Pettie. They attended the jubilee services for their father at the Baptist Church, returning to their homes Monday.

Mrs. Harry Walker, who has been visiting Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Dodds for the past few weeks, will leave Friday for her home in BonAir, Tenn. She will be accompanied home by Miss Martha Emily Dodds, who will spend several weeks there.

Sheriff J. O. West and son, J. C., and Jailer Tobe Jackson went to Louisville, Lexington, Frankfort and other points in Kentucky the first of the week, taking several prisoners to the state's penal institutions.

A. R. Stone was in Union City yesterday buying Stetson Hats for Smith & Amberg's.

Master Charles Stokes is visiting his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Stokes in Water Valley.

Mrs. Hardaman Howard of Paducah was here the latter part of last week visiting her parents, Julian Chouteau and wife.

Miss Ethel Edmiston visited relatives in Union City Sunday.

M. C. Barrett and E. A. Hammond, local undertakers, are attending a meeting of the Tri-States Undertakers Association this week in Memphis.

J. T. Dillon, of Nashville, is visiting his mother, Mrs. Tom Dillon.

Dave Morgan is attending the graduating exercises of his nephew in Morristown.

Mrs. S. L. Dodds returned Monday to her home in Clarksdale, Miss., after a visit with friends and relatives here.

FIFTY YEARS IN MASTER'S SERVICE

Jubilee Service at First Baptist Church in Honor of Pastor.

Sunday, May 14, 1922 was a memorable day at the First Baptist Church of Hickman. The occasion was the celebration of the fiftieth anniversary of the ordination of the pastor, Dr. A. S. Pettie. Half a century of continuous devotion to any legitimate business or profession is commendable but fifty years as an active minister of the gospel is an attainment seldom reached and is far greater than a similar period spent in secular affairs.

Surrounded by many beautiful flowers, Dr. Pettie preached at both the morning and evening services. His morning subject was, "What is Your Life?" and that of the evening service, "The Second Coming of Christ." On both occasions he handled his subject well and showed that although his hair is silvery white, his brilliant mind and memory are still in their youth. Notwithstanding the fact that Dr. Pettie has been an ordained minister for fifty years, he is yet not as old as some of our ministers for he began at the age of seventeen and was ordained three years later.

Several visitors from the Mayfield church where Dr. Pettie was pastor for seventeen years, were present and one of them, Mr. J. C. Grant, read a message of congratulation sent by that church. Many other letters from his former pastorates and one from C. M. Thompson, Corresponding Secretary of the Mission Board were also read.

The choir and congregation rendered songs sung in the long ago. At the close of the sermon, the doors opened and two little children, Margaret Jo Mitchell and James Allen Mitchell entered carrying a basket of flowers which they presented to Dr. Pettie as a token of appreciation from the Ladies Aid Society. He was also the recipient of many useful gifts.

The church at Hickman thoroughly appreciates Dr. Pettie and his faithful wife and we feel that they are the right people in the right place. It is the hope of the membership that when twenty-five years more have passed, it will be their privilege and pleasure to celebrate the 75th anniversary of Dr. Pettie's ordination.

MISS MARSHALL THIRD PRIZE WINNER

Miss Mary E. Marshall received last week a letter from Curran Pope, M. D., chairman of the patriotic committee of the Sons of the American Revolution, stating that Miss Marshall's essay in that society's contests had been declared by the judge to be entitled to the third prize. This is an unusual honor, for the contest was a nation wide one, and was entered by young ladies and gentlemen in high schools throughout the country. Miss Marshall graduated in the Class of 1922 of the Hickman High school, being the valedictorian of her class.

MOTHER'S DAY SERVICE.

The special Mother's Day service at the First Methodist Church Sunday morning was largely attended and the program of the occasion, consisting of instrumental and vocal music, readings, etc., was excellently rendered and was thoroughly enjoyed by the audience. The program was especially adapted to the occasion which it celebrated. The regular services at night were dismissed in order that the congregation might worship with that of the Baptist Church in the jubilee service for the Rev. A. S. Pettie.

CLEANUP WEEK PRIZES

The Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. offered two prizes of $5.00 each for the best poster and best essay on Cleanup Week. While the interest of the school children in the contest was not as great as was hoped for, many good posters and essays were contributed.

Three disinterested judges were appointed and their decisions were as follows:

Best Essay—James Pendleton.
Best Poster—James Swift.

CARD OF THANKS.

The Parent-Teachers Association desires to thank every person who so kindly donated their services and materials to our use for the pageant. So many are those who favored us in this manner that it would be attempting the impossible to thank each one individually and we take this means of extending our appreciation to all.
Parent-Teachers Association.

The Daughters of the Confederacy, Private Robert Tyne Chapter, met on Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock with Mrs. S. B. Parker, at the home of her daughter, Mrs. C. L. Walker.

Miss Myra Blakemore, one of the eighth grade graduates, left Wednesday for Nashville, where she will spend part of her vacation with her cousin, Miss Neva Hamby.

Mrs. R. M. Isler and daughter, Mrs. Jessie Dillon, returned the first of the week from a visit in Paducah with Captain and Mrs. Koger.

Alvin Creed left last week for Akron, Ohio, where he has accepted a position. Mrs. Creed will join him in the near future.

Mrs. E. R. Hunziker left Monday for St. Louis for a short visit.

CULTURAL ADVANTAGES OF HICKMAN

If you were seeking a home for yourself and family what sort of a city would you choose? Would you ask, “How shall I broaden my knowledge and my sphere of influence? How shall I continue the development of my own mentality?”

The average woman of today is not entirely a housewife, or what folks have termed a “home body.” No, the woman of today is an active force in the community, in the state and in the nation. She is seeking over to improve herself and the conditions which surround her. She has made herself most effectively felt through the medium of her clubs and the work of these clubs.

The basic work of woman's work in Hickman is the impelling, co-ordinated efforts of the various woman's clubs.

There was a day when a club woman was made the object of many stinging jokes, but that day has passed.

The club woman of today is the leader in the community. Her work is a cultural work which is felt in every civilized movement. In Hickman there are several clubs in which woman is given opportunity for self-expression.

First of all should be a real virtue woman's club, the central organization from which all other clubs have grown.

The woman's club is a dynamic body, a central power station, from which the woman of the community take their enthusiasm into other organizations, into home life and into public life, social and public health. It is a Democratic organization, too. It is not an autocratic body, organized for the socially elite, nor for those of wealth and position. It should number women from every walk of life among its members—its members women who, because of their mentality, their ability and their interest in the things which women can do to improve themselves and their sphere of influence. The woman's club can arrange courses of study which rival the university extension extension courses of the great universities.

Perhaps your interest lies in music rather than in the literary and civic efforts of the woman's club. This there could be the music department, entirely separate, where you may find expression for your interest in music, if it happens to be an interest of the cultural type.

Perhaps it is art to which you direct your womanly interest. Then the art department would fill this need, where copies of the most famous artists appear from time to time to be studied.
We have just had a fine exhibit at the library, but on account of the weather but few attended.

The modern woman has yet another large sphere of study and influence—the field of citizenship. Woman, we know, is now a full fledged citizen, taking an active part in the affairs of the city and the nation. To this side of her development a department of civics will fill the need. Civic affairs were long a woman's work, before she wrestled from man her right to an equal place in city improvements and national civics.

Maybe you enjoy the birds. Then join the bird department and enjoy hikes to the woods and fields where our feathered friends can be enjoyed. Birds have found their greatest benefactors among the women of the nation, even though the founder of the organized effort in their behalf was a man by the name of Audubon.

Then the last, but very important, is the P. T. A., which has done such effective work in our schools. Let us rally around this splendid cause and make our schools the best in the state and see that every boy and girl has a chance for an education, which our new buildings will be able to care for. The public health work has been the means of making our community a better place to live in and our boys and girls able to do better work because of the school kitchen, which gives them better nourished bodies and the defects in the body which the school nurse and the doctor have found and which in many cases has been remedied.

Our fine library, which is so well equipped, might be looked after by a library board and again become an active force in the community. An intelligent use of a library, and the reading tables with current magazines, can become a great vital force to the community. Let us get a new viewpoint, a better vision, and sharpen our wits and mentality by reasoning together, pulling together, and make a bigger, better, livelier Hickman.

MAKES ENVIABLE RECORD AT STATE UNIVERSITY

Lexington, Ky.—Among the students at the University of Kentucky who have attained a high scholastic standing, been popular on the campus and an active member in a number of student organizations is Miss Annie Russell
Moore, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. H.
Moore, Hickman, Ky. She is a senior in the College of Arts and Sciences and upon her graduation in June will carry away a full share of honors from the University. Miss Moore attended the scholarship banquet given last year by the Woman's Pan-Hellenic Council, for those having a standing of 3, which is a high distinction. She was pledged to Mortar Board, honorary senior girls' fraternity, at the end of her junior year. She is a charter member of Lambda Phi Sorority, petitioning Delta Delta Delta sorority. Miss Moore has held a number of offices and has filled them all efficiently. She was junior representative of the Council of the Woman's Self Government Association and was vice president of Maxwell Hall for the current year. She also served on the Y. W. C. A. cabinet last year.
She is secretary and treasurer of the Tennis club and, playing an excellent game of tennis, stands a good chance of winning the tournament, which will be held here next week. Among the other organizations on the campus of which she has been an active member are the Fulton County, Romance Language, So-ciology and Economics, Mathematics clubs, the Woman's League.

Beveridge Victory Called a Jolt

Who says they never come back? Not the friends of former U. S. Senator Beveridge of Indiana.

The defeat of Senator Harry S. New in the Indiana Republican primaries at the hands of Beveridge has caused a sensation in Washington administration circles. By astute politicians, the result is regarded as a protest against several of the appointments made by the President.

Beveridge is of independent mind, as advanced in his political ideas as he is in his head gear.

ABOUT THE SEA WALL.

In printing the letters and telegrams from our congressmen and senators last week in which they pledged their support, we were sorry that this one came too late. It is from Senator A. O. Stanley, and will be of interest to our readers:

Mr. Coalder Johnson, Hickman, Kentucky. My dear Coalder:

I wired acknowledgement of the receipt of your kind and thoughtful telegram and also wired the Mayor and Council of the receipt by wire of a copy of the resolution. I immediately took up with the Chief of Engineers and with the Mississippi River Commission at St. Louis the question of the earliest possible action looking to a survey and examination into the feasibility and practicability of affording the town of Hickman the greatly needed relief.

I will keep you and the officials interested advised as to any and all progress made. I think that Representative Barkley to whom you and the Mayor also wired has taken the same action that I have, and I will be glad to cooperate with him in the matter, when it appears advantageous.

With kind personal regards, I am, Cordially and sincerely yours, A. O. STANLEY.

FAREWELL PARTY.

A delightful party was given by Miss Jessie Outten Saturday morning from 9:30 to 11:30 as a farewell to little Misses Nilla May and Elizabeth Bonduant, who are leaving in the near future with their mother, Mrs. Murphy Bonduant, for their new home in Crosbyton, Texas. Decorations were white peonies and refreshments of ice cream cones were served. The honorees were the recipients of several nice presents. Those present were: Alice Remmenberg, Jack White, Lida Blaw, Richard Cheshire, Martha Stevens Maddox, Mary Parks Ellison, Alice Amberg, Selma Townsend, Rose Amelia Pyle, Dorothy Hill Peavler, Louise Stone, Calista Johnston, Margaret Mason, French, Jeanette Horine, Ruth Horine, Ruth Stokes, Virginia Cheshire, Dorothy Klug Naifeh, Maybelle Phelps and Martha Morrison.

Original "Water Wagon."
It seems that the phrase "water wagon" started from the large-tanked wagons of the northwest, used in the harvesting season to supply water for the steam engine which runs the threshing machine. No one is more in need of water to drink than laborers of the wheat fields, working under the scorching sun. The workers were prone to hop up on the water wagon to quench their thirst every time the wagon came in. This was obtained from a keg of water kept submerged in the tank to keep it cool.

The Hickman colored team defeated the Fulton colored ball team Sunday afternoon 9 to 0. This was a no hit game. The battery for Hickman was Keys and Thomas.

WHAT TO EAT

While cranberries are still in the market, many housewives can them for use when they are out of season. To one quart of the berries add one cupful of cold water, cook slowly, stirring until smooth. Press through a colander, measure, and add equal quantity of sugar; seal while hot. Less sugar will be all right for keeping. If one does not like them so sweet.

Pecan Nut Loaf.—Mix one cupful of hot boiled rice, one cupful of pecan meats finely chopped, one cupful of cracker crumbs, one egg well beaten, one cupful of milk, one-half teaspoonful of salt, one-fourth of a teaspoonful of paprika, a few dashes of cayenne. Mix well and turn into a well-buttered bread pan. Pour over one tablespoonful of butter and bake in a moderate oven one hour. Turn on a hot platter, garnish the top with parsley and pour around the following sauce: Cook three tablespoonfuls of butter with two slices of onion three minutes, stirring constantly. Add three tablespoonfuls of flour and stir until well blended, then pour on gradually, stirring constantly, one and one-half cups of milk. Bring to the boiling point and cook two minutes. Season with salt and pepper and strain.

Pineapple Pie.—Bake a pastry shell and fill with the following: Soak a can of grated pineapple in a double boiler; sift three tablespoonfuls of cornstarch, half a teaspoonful of salt, one cupful of sugar until thoroughly mixed, then add to the hot pineapple mixture and cook until smooth and thick. Cover and cook 15 minutes; add two tablespoonfuls of butter, the juice and rind of half a lemon, mix well and turn into the pastry shell. Cover with a meringue and brown in the oven.

Baked Stuffed Apples.—Core and peel enough apples to serve the family. Place in a baking dish and fill the cavities with sugar mixed with cinnamon, chopped raisins and butter. Add a little water and bake until tender, basting often. Serve as a dessert, with cream.

"Latin is a living force in daily life and all other studies are in overwhelming debt to it," says Prof. F. S. Dunn, dean of the department of Latin in the University of Oregon, in a bulletin which he has written for the Latin teachers in the high schools and colleges of Oregon.

"The teacher," he says, "must read English from out the Latin and Latin from out the English; must see geometry, biology and physics in Caesar; must conjure legal phrases and doctors' prescriptions from Cicero's orations; must flash the 'Idylls of the King' and 'Paradise Lost' and the 'Faery Queen' across the pages of Virgil; must brand every paragraph with the Romance languages and Latin America and the Philippines; must see Rome in the clock dial, in the 10-cent piece, in a decimal fraction, in the almanac, in the days of the week, in the Sunday liturgy, in Oregon's seal, in the omnibus bill, in the ultimatum to Turkey, in an aeronaut or a submarine; in Montana or in Arizona; in Cincinnati or in Olympia; in Lucy or in Gus; in patrimony or matrimony or alimony, it matters not which, for it is all Latin, anyway, and everywhere you turn."

Canada to Develop Mussel.

Canada is about to make capital out of a substitute for the oyster which is found along the Atlantic coast, chiefly in New Brunswick. It is a mussel which is by no means a new article of diet to the people of Canada. Its delicacy of flavor and high food value have been much advertised since the establishment of government investigation and experiment. A survey of the mussel beds of the St. Croix river, which constitutes the boundary between New Brunswick and Maine, has occupied the attention of a scientist of the council for three years, and it is expected that this year will see the satisfactory conclusion of the research. The sea mussel cannot be produced in fresh water, so that there is no possibility of developing an industry in the Great Lakes. It is believed that there are possibilities, however, of the development of fresh-water clams there in the near future.

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I.—Harriet Field, twenty-eight years old and beautiful, is the social secretary of the fashionable Mrs. Isabelle Carter, at "Crowlands." Richard Carter, Harriet's brother, is a young man of twenty-four years old and is a very successful business man. He is in love with his mother's attractive secretary, Miss Carter's latest "affair" with young Anthony Pope, and the youth is taking it very seriously.

CHAPTER II.—Treading over the teacups this summer afternoon, Harriet is profoundly disturbed by the arrival of a visitor. Royal Blondin. Next day, at a tea party in the city, Blondin makes himself agreeable to Nina, and leaves a deep impression on the unsophisticated girl.

CHAPTER III.—Harriet's agitation over the appearance of Blondin at "Crowlands" is explained by the fact that he had been a disturbing element in her life ten years before, and she fears him. The man is an avowed adventurer, living on the gullibility of the idle rich. He frankly announces to Harriet his intention of marrying Nina, who, as the daughter of the wealthy Richard Carter, is a highly desirable "catch," and urges her to aid him. She is to a sense in his power, and after pleading with him to abandon his schemes agrees to follow a policy of neutrality.

CHAPTER IV.—Harriet visits her married sister, Linda Davenport, with whom she had had her home during her unfortunate acquaintance with Blondin, and tells her of his reappearance. The two women, realizing the unscrupulous nature of the man, view the future with apprehension.

CHAPTER V.—Knowing the tender feeling she has inspired in Ward Carter, Harriet is tempted to marry him for the position and wealth he can give her. Though realizing she loves him, Blondin has ingratiated himself with Madame Carter, Richard's mother, and she is wholeheartedly in favor of his marriage with Nina. Ward urges Harriet to marry him at once. She procrastitates.

CHAPTER VI.—Angered at his wife's too open flirtation with young Anthony Pope, Richard Carter markedly shows his resentment. Isabelle, ardently returning her youthful lover's attentions, elopes with him on his yacht, and perils his life. The news of the sensational affair, exaggerated, of course, by gossip, is kept as much as possible from being public property.

CHAPTER VII.—Ward Carter again urges Harriet to marry him, but she cannot bring herself to an alliance with him merely for the sake of the position and wealth. The fact of Mrs. Carter's elopement becomes public. Harriet's capacity for managing her own affairs is more than ever needed at "Crowlands," and despite the complications she foresees as inevitable she decides to remain.

CHAPTER VIII.—Blondin puts pressure on Harriet to force her to marry him. Nina, but she makes up her mind to defy him. Richard Carter questions her concerning her knowledge of Blondin's intentions, and she courageously avows her intention to marry him. The family, with Harriet, move to a summer establishment on Long Island.

CHAPTER IX.—In the new home Harriet, with Madame Carter and Nina, settle down for a vacation. In a frank talk with Nina, Harriet endeavors to show her the unworthiness of Blondin, but it has little effect on the frustrated girl. On Richard Carter's insistence, Harriet is installed as mistress of the household, but finding her position untenable, declares her intention of leaving. Richard makes an offer of marriage as a way out of the situation, but Harriet, considering such a thing impossible while Mrs. Carter (though divorced) is still alive, refuses, and leaves the house. To her old-fashioned ideas, the fact that Richard Carter has been granted a divorce from his erring wife does not free him from his marital ties, and marriage with him is impossible.

CHAPTER X.—At her sister's home Harriet helps to bring her small son home safely through an attack of diphtheria. Linda cordially approves Harriet's stand on the question of marriage with a divorced man. David Davenport, Linda's brother-in-law, warmly presses his suit, and Harriet has about made up her mind to accept him when Richard Carter appears with the announcement that Isabelle is dead and no obstacle to his marriage with Harriet remains. The girl yields, and the marriage is quietly solemnized. Harriet offers to tell Richard the circumstances of her entanglement with Blondin, but he refuses to listen.

"Some with Nina about it?" Richard had asked, curiously.

"Nina was not here," Harriet answered. And there was a faint smile in the deep blue eyes that she raised suddenly to his.

"Ah, well, I knew, of course, that you would manage it," he said, contentedly. "It seems black art to me. I had enough of it!"

She smiled again, and went quietly to her place. But when he summoned Ward and Nina to his mother's room, after dinner, she had disappeared, and the family was quite alone when he broke the news to them.

Harriet, presently needed again, was astonished at the emotion of the old lady, who had been genuinely fond of her daughter-in-law, and had always been loyal to Isabelle, as one of the Carters. Madame Carter was greatly shaken, Nina hysterical, Ward agitated, and Harriet, at her own feeling. He had not seen his mother for seven months, she had brought nothing but a certain unpleasant notoriety to her children, yet her death struck both the young creatures forcibly, and they felt shocked and shaken.

"We can't be in the Fordyce tabernacle," said Nina in an interval between floods of sobs. "Not that I would want to, now! But I don't know: it seems to me that I am the most unfortunate girl in the world!"

"I think both you and Ward should wear black for a certain period," Richard said to her. He had been walking the floor nervously, stopping now and then beside the great chair where his mother sat silent and stricken, to put his arm about her shoulders, and murmur to her consolingly.

"When my mother died," Madame Carter quavered with her handkerchief pressed to the tip of her nose, "my sisters and I wore black, and refused all social engagements for one year. We then, I remember distinctly, began to wear white and lavender—"

Nina broke in pettishly: "I don't see why I have to wear black!"

"Why should you?" Ward said with bitter scorn. "It's only your mother!" Nina began to cry.

"You and I will go down to Landman's early tomorrow, Nina," Harriet suggested, "and we'll have some one show us what is simple and nice—not crape, you know," Harriet said, with a glance at Richard Carter, "but black, for a few months, anyway."

"I think that would be the best," Richard, his mother approved. "I believe I will go with you," she condescended to Harriet, "after all, Isabelle was my daughter-in-law, and the mother of my grandchildren!"

"And I won't go to California or Bermuda or anywhere else unless Ladybird comes!" Nina burst out, with a broken sob.

"Nonsense!" her father began harshly. Harriet said: "Bermuda? Is there a plan for Bermuda?"

"I suggested it for a few weeks," Richard said, frowning, "but I don't propose to have Nina invite a group of friends. That isn't exactly the idea."

"We could ask Mrs. Tabor," Harriet said, soothingly. "It is right in the middle of the season, and perhaps she will feel she can hardly spare the time. But I'm sure that if she can—"

"If I ask her, she'll go," Nina said, in a sulky, confident undertone. Harriet had her doubts, but she did not express them. A month at Nassau, in the undiluted company of Nina and her grandmother, was enough to appall even Harriet's stout heart.

The event proved her right, for while Ida Tabor flew at once to her disconsolate little friend, and assured her with tears in her eyes that she would do anything in the world to help him, she weakened when the actual test arrived.

"If just you and I and your dear grandmother were going, dearest girl," she said to Nina, "then it would be perfect. But as long as Miss Field, who is perfectly charming and conscientious and all that, feels that she must accompany us, why—you and I would never be a moment alone, sweetheart, you know that! I don't like to think that it's jealousy!"

"Of course it's jealousy," Nina was pleased to decide, gloomily. "Granny says that we don't need her, but Father just sticks to it that she must manage everything!"

Ida Tabor smiled automatically. "I don't suppose your father sees anything in Miss Field?" she submitted, lightly.

"Oh, heavens, no!" Nina said, studying herself in a handglass. There was a rather steely look in the eyes of her friend Ladybird, but she did not see it. Her smile of pleasure gradually gave place to a pout. "I'm going to ask Father if we need Miss Harriet!" she said.

And that evening she did indeed attack Richard on the subject, although not as decidedly as she had planned. He listened to her interestedly enough, with his evening paper held ready for his next glance.

"Let you roam about the country with Mrs. Tabor," he said, as the girl's faltering accents stopped. "No, my dear, it's out of the question! In the first place, she is not the sort of companion I would choose for any girl, and in the second place I would never know where you and your grandmother were, or what was happening to you! While Miss Field is in charge I shall feel entirely safe. Of course, if Mrs. Tabor chooses to invite herself, that's her affair!"

"Then I don't want to go!" Nina stormed. But in the end she did go. Madame Carter, Nina and Harriet duly sailed, in the second week of January, and Ward joined them almost a month later, in Nassau. And here Harriet had the brother and sister at their best, free to show the genuine childishness that was in them, to swim and picnic and tramp, and here she indulged Nina in long talks, and encouraged her to associate with the young people she met.

Harriet wrote once a week to Richard, making a general report, and enclosing receipts for hotel and miscellaneous bills. His communications usually took the form of cables, although once or twice she received typewritten letters.

In mid-April they all came home again, and Crowlands, in the year's first shy fling of green, looked wonderful to Harriet's homesick eyes.

Richard was to join them at dinner; it had been impossible for him to meet them when the boat arrived, but Fox had been there and attended to the formalities. It had pleased them all to make the occasion formal and to dress accordingly. Nina looked her prettiest in a white silk, and the old lady was magnificent in diamonds and brocade. Harriet deliberately selected her handsomest gown, a severe black satin that wrapped her slender body with one superb and shilling sweep, and left her white arms and firm, flawless shoulders bare. The firm young lines of chin and throat, the swelling white breast that met the encasing satin, the slippers with their twinkling buckles—she could not but find every detail pleasing, and her scarlet mouth, firmly shut, was twitched by a sudden dimple.

She glanced at the clock, went slowly to the door, and slowly down the big square stairway. Richard and his children were in the lower hall, and they all glanced up.

HARRIET AND THE PIPER

Down in the soft glow of light came Harriet, smiling as she slipped her left arm about Nina, and gave the free hand to Nina's father. She was apparently cool and unself-conscious; inwardly she felt feverish, frightened and excited and happy, all at once. Richard was in evening dress, too; he looked his best; his dark hair brushed to a shining crest, and his gray eyes full of pleasure.

"Well, Miss Field—" he said, a little breathlessly. "Well! Your vacation hasn't done you any harm!"

"We had to make an occasion of our coming home!" Harriet said, with a nervous laugh, trying not to see the admiration in his eyes.

"You look wonderful!" Nina said. "Why, you saw this gown at Nassau!" Harriet protested.

"Lionise—or whoever she was of—Princess, or whatever you call it, turned in the family vault when you walked down these stairs!" Ward said. "O-o-o—caught you under the mistletoe—o-o-o, you would!" he added with an effort to envelop her in his embrace.

"Ward, behave yourself!" Harriet said, evading him, and walking toward the dining room with his grandmother, who came downstairs in her turn, and joined them.

Richard Carter watched her, the incarnation of young and beautiful womanhood. Clever he knew her to be, capable and conscientious, but tonight she was in a new role. He liked to see her there at the other end of the table; he realized that she was the center of things, here in his house, and that he had missed her.

After dinner it chanced that Bottumley called her to the telephone, and that a moment later she passed the call on to Richard.

"It's Mr. Gardiner, Mr. Carter. He didn't know that you were here, but he would rather speak to you," Harriet said. Richard went to the telephone, and as she moved to make room for him, and gave him the receiver, he had a sudden breath of the sweetness and freshness of her, of hair and young firm skin, of the rustling satin gown, and the little handkerchief that she dropped, and that he picked up for her. He smiled as he gave it, and flushed inexplicably, and his first few words to the bewildered Gardiner were a little shaken and breathless. But Richard was quite himself again in an hour or two later, when he sent for Miss Field, and she came into the library.

"I couldn't say that I'm entirely pleased with the way matters have gone, Harriet," said Richard, when she had seated herself on the opposite side of his big, flat desk, and looking her white hands on the shining surface, had fixed her magnificent eyes on him. "Nina seems in fine shape, and I have never seen my mother better. You seem to have a genius for managing the Carters. I'm seriously considering an offer from Gardiner; he's got to take his boy out to Nevada for his health. Ward wants to go, and would very probably like it when he got there. I hope he will try it anyhow! So that leaves Nina, who is safe enough with you, and my mother, who seems perfectly well and happy. Meanwhile, while you've been gone, we've gotten the Brazilian company well started, so that I shall have a little more freedom than I've had for years."

"You look as if you needed it," Harriet observed.

"You look wonderful!" Richard returned, simply. "Wonderful! Is that a new gown?"

"Well, I had it made last November just before I went away. Mrs. Carter gave me the material a year ago," Harriet glanced down at herself and smiled.

"You might wear pearls—or something—with it," Richard said. "Do you like pearls?"

It was astonishing to see the color come up in her dusky skin; her eyes met his almost pleadingly.

"Why—I never thought!" she said, in some confusion.

"I suppose a man may ask his wife if she likes pearls?" Richard said, impelled by some feeling he did not define. He had leaned back in his chair, and half-closed his eyes, as he studied her.

"Oh—please!" Harriet said in an agony. She gave a horrified glance about, but the library was closed and silent. "Some one might hear you!" she whispered. And a moment later she rose to her feet, and eyed him quietly. "Was that all, Mr. Carter?" she asked. It was Richard's turn to look a trifle confused.

"That's all—my dear!" he said, obediently. The term made her flush again. He was still smiling when she closed the door.

CHAPTER XII.

It was the gayest spring that Harriet had ever known at Crownlands, for even at her best, Isabelle had been socially an individualist, devoting herself to one man at a time, and to no body else, and the whole family had necessarily accepted Isabelle's attitude. Richard had been too busy to notice or protest, the old lady helpless, and Nina a child.

But now there was a beautiful and gracious woman in Isabelle's place, and long before the world knew that Harriet Field was really Harriet Carter, there was a very different change in the social atmosphere. Richard began to bring his friends to the house; he was proud of his smoothly running establishment, and proud of the charming woman who neither flirted with nor ignored the men he brought home.

Always beautiful and always busy, constantly in demand on all sides, she went about her house like a smiling worker of miracles, and Richard watched her. When she went home to her sister for a day or two he missed her strangely, and wandered about the empty rooms with a desolate sense of loss.

She was presently back, and amused the young people at the dinner table with a spirited account of her sister's move into a new house—"really an old house," that she and her family had been watching for years.

Nina and Amy and Ward had rushed from the dinner table to an early dance at the club, and Richard, after a talk with his mother on the terrace, had wandered about with a vague hope of finding Harriet somewhere with her book. But she was not downstairs.

He went back, and presently accompanied his mother to her door. The old lady stopped outside of Nina's open door, from which a subdued light streamed.

"Oh, Miss Field—" said Madame Carter.

"Yes, Madame Carter?" The rich, ready voice responded instantly. Richard hoped she would come to the door, but his mother's message was delivered too quickly to make it necessary.

"You're waiting up for Nina?" "Oh, yes, Madame Carter!" Harriet answered. The two exchanged good-nights Richard loitered into his mother's room, left her in her maid's hands, and went back into the dimly lighted, spacious upper hall. He felt oddly stirred; there were letters downstairs, his usual books and amusements, but he felt curiously impelled to try for one more word with Miss Field.

He opened the door of Nina's room, and went in, and knocked on the half-open door within that connected it with Harriet's room.

"Come in. Is it you, Pilgrim?" the pleasant, quiet voice said. Richard stepped to the doorway.

Harriet, seated in a square basket chair, under the soft flood of light from a basket-shaded lamp, rose presently, and stood looking at him with widened eyes and parted lips, without speaking. She was plainly frightened, though she made herself smile. The beautiful room was full of shadows; at the wide-open windows thin curtains stirred in the cool night air.

"Frighten you?" Richard said. "Is there something?" Her eyes were those of a deer that is afraid to turn.

"Why, I wanted to suggest that we tell our little piece of news to the family," Richard suggested, after a momentary search for a suitable subject. "I came very close to telling my mother, just now. Is there any good reason for further delay?"

"Why, no, I don't—I don't suppose there is," Harriet stammered. "There will be talk."

"I suppose so," he answered, simply. "But what we do is our own affair, after all. I shall explain to my mother, and that for us both it seemed a practical and a—well, not unpleasant solution. There need be no change here, but you will simply have a more assured position."

She had been watching him, with all June in her face. But as he went on the color slowly drained away, and about her beautiful eyes a look of strain and even of something like shame gradually deepened. When she spoke, it was as if the muscles of her throat were constricted.

"Yes, I see. Certainly, I see. We will have to let them talk. This is simply the best arrangement possible under the circumstances!"

"It is an arrangement that a man perhaps has no right to ask of a woman," Richard said. "Love means a great deal in a girl's life, and I suppose there is nothing else that makes up for the lack of it. But you are not an ordinary woman, and I assure you that in every way that I can I mean to prove to you how deeply I appreciate what you are doing for us all."

"Thank you!" Harriet said, almost

"Simply change your name on your cheeks," Richard said, thoughtfully. "I shall have Fox step into the bank with the authenticated signature. And if there is anything else, use your own judgment. Perhaps, if I tell my mother, you would like to write to certain friends—? You can continue to draw on the Corn Exchange, that's simplest, and I hope you'll remember that you have a large personal credit there," he added, with a smile. "It occurred to me tonight that you—you mustn't let your sister worry about that new house. If you want your own car—" "Oh, good heavens, Mr. Carter!" Harriet said, suffocating.

"Ask me anything that puzzles you," the man said. And with a brief good-night he was gone. Harriet, who had dropped back into her chair, sat absolutely motionless for a long, long time. Her eyes were fixed on space; she hardly breathed; it almost seemed as if her heart was stopped.

Richard went downstairs, surprised to feel still vaguely unsatisfied. He had had his word with Harriet, had said indeed much that he had not expected to say. However, it was much better to let the world know their relationship; he was perfectly satisfied to have it so. But still, as he settled himself to an hour's reading, the plaguing little impulse persisted. He would like to go upstairs again; he missed her companionship.

There was something very appealing about this woman, thought Richard, suddenly closing his book. Her beauty, her silences, her complete subjugation of her own interests to his, he found strangely fascinating.

"By George, she has made a most interesting woman of herself!" Richard decided, opening his book again. "She ought to be right in the middle of things, that girl!"

A day or two later Madame Carter came out to the terrace at eleven o'clock, beautifully groomed and gowned, and with an imperative hand arrested Harriet, who was tumbled and sunburned from the tennis court and was going toward the house.

"Just a moment, Miss Field," said she, magnificently. Harriet obediently stood still, and watched Madame Carter's magnificence settle itself slowly in a basket chair. The old lady freed an eyeglass ribbon deliberately, straightened a ruffle, laid her magazine beside her on a table. "There was a little matter of which I wished to speak to you," she said, suavely, bringing her distant glance to rest dispassionately for a moment upon Harriet's face.

Harriet waited, amused, annoyed, impatient.

"I understand," Madame Carter said, "that you and my son—for some reason best known to yourselves—have entered into a secret marriage?"

"Your first object, my dear, is not to antagonize his mother!" Harriet reminded herself. Aloud she said mildly: "You have no reason to disbelieve it, have you?"

"No reason to disbelieve my son!" his mother echoed, scandalized. "Why should I have! Mr. Carter is the soul of honor—absolutely the soul. Upon my word, I don't understand you!"

"I said you have no reason to disbelieve him," Harriet repeated. "You said that you understood that we had been married. It is true!"

And she looked off toward the river with an expression as composed as that of Madame Carter herself.

"I suppose you know that old saying: 'A secret bride has a secret to hide!'" the old woman pursued, pleasantly.

"I never heard it. I did not play much with the children of the neighborhood when I was a child," Harriet answered. "My father was very anxious to protect us from picking up expressions of that sort!"

No Worms in a Healthy Child

All children troubled with Worms have an unhealthy color, which indicates poor blood, and as a rule, there is more or less stomach disturbance. GROVE'S TASTELESS CHILL TONIC given regularly for two or three weeks will enrich the blood, improve the digestion, and act as a general strengthening tonic to the whole system. Nature will then throw off or dispel the worms, and the child will be in perfect health. Pleasant to take. 60c per bottle.

The Chicago fire destroyed 17,450 buildings.

Pacific coast fire losses are steadily mounting.

Oregon produces about 70,000,000 dozen eggs annually.

Tired

"I was weak and run-down," relates Mrs. Eula Burnett, of Dalton, Ga. "I was thin and just felt tired, all the time. I didn't rest well. I wasn't ever hungry. I knew, by this, I needed a tonic, and as there is none better than—

CARDUI

The Woman's Tonic

"... I began using Cardui," continues Mrs. Burnett. "After my first bottle, I slept better and ate better. I took four bottles. Now I'm well, feel just fine, eat and sleep, my skin is clear and I have gained and sure feel that Cardui is the best tonic ever made."

Thousands of other women have found Cardui just as Mrs. Burnett did. It should help you.

BACK TO TENT-SKIRT DAYS?

Hoop Craze, It Is Reliably Reported, Threatens to Engulf Woman Kind Once More.

The jazz skirt is doomed. Those who have refrained from drinking wood alcohol for fear of going blind during the brief skirt epidemic need have no such compunction in the future. A French fashion journal says the hoop skirt will be all the rage within one year, writes Roy K. Moulton in the New York Mail.

The first hoop skirt was designed by Omar the Tentmaker, and the idea was later used by P. T. Burnum to house his congress of freaks and animals. So far its history goes Omar's design was first used as a skirt by the late lamented Queen Elizabeth.

When Queen Liz floated out of Windsor castle to take the air she resembled a full-rigged ship sailing before the wind, with everything working, including the foretop's spinnaker and jibs. She occupied so much territory that she had to speak in a loud tone of voice to be heard by her large circle of admirers. They used to hold the six-day bicycle races around the edge of her skirt.

In those days the woman herself merely acted in the capacity of center pole for the tent she wore and when she was overtaken by a high wind it was customary for her flunkies to stake her gown to the ground around the edges.

There was a lull in the hoop skirt epidemic for some time, and hoop skirts broke out in this country along about the Civil war period. They didn't exactly cause the war, but they may cause one this time.

SANG AS GUEST, NOT ARTIST

Jean de Reszke Accepted Remuneration Only When He Appeared on the Stage.

Jean de Reszke is a great gentleman, not merely as one of an ancient, historical Polish family, but in his own dignity of character and of bearing. The famous tenor, now retired, is living at Nice.

He found himself naturally at home within social portals then inaccessible to the world of artists; he was an aristocrat among the most aristocratic. He insisted on this, not blatantly, of course; he would not have been an aristocrat if he had; but in the important particular that he accepted remuneration only when he appeared on the stage; never as a guest of society.

A little anecdote of the time will illustrate how de Reszke insisted on thus remaining a guest. A great financier invited him and his brother to one of his great banquets, and at the end, naturally, the artists were asked to sing. They did so. Then the host, who was generosity itself—it was, in fact, the late Alfred de Rothschild—presented them two blank checks.

Herewith a dilemma; on the one hand two proud aristocrats asked to break their rule of accepting no fee for a performance in social life, on the other an act of seeming rudeness in refusing what was meant to be a compliment from a host.

They settled the matter by accepting the checks, and sending them back next day blank and torn.

Mrs. Clarence Johnson and little daughter of Clinton have been visiting here several days with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Josh Monan.

Too Much for Airplane.

Efforts to make use of airplanes for the purpose of assisting in the efforts to scale high mountains have not been attended with any great success. In the Alps the varying conditions of the snow surface has been a serious detriment to making landings and "getaways." Again, on heights above 15,000 feet the rarity of the air begins to affect the steering and control of an airplane. At 20,000 feet, pilots say, control for landing is doubtful and at still higher levels it is impossible. Of course, planes have climbed to more than 36,000 feet with the pilots kept alive by oxygen. But these have been straight up and down achievements. This is largely why the airplane idea has been given up on Mount Everest.

More Dwelling Houses.

There was a decided increase in the construction of dwelling houses in this country during the first ten months of 1921, according to information obtained by the civic development department of the National Chamber of Commerce. Construction figures furnished by 44 important cities show that during the period from January to October of last year about $603,000,000 went into new construction, while during all 1920 the total in the same cities was only $5,000,000 more. During the shorter period this year 57.9 per cent of the total was for dwelling houses as against only 36.1 per cent in 1920. It is believed that the dwelling percentage will be larger when all figures are in.

RIVERVIEW SCHOOL.

The graduation exercises of the River-view High School were held last Thursday night at Pleasant Hill Baptist Church. There were ten graduates this year. This makes the 32nd year for Prof. G. T. Halliburton at the River-view School. He is one of the foremost colored educators of the state and is doing a great work in Hickman.

The class was composed of the following graduates: Irene Allen, Russell Brown, Ella Mal Thompson, Roberta Merrillweather, Geneva Walker, Bettie Jones, Lewis Upshaw, Raymond Wilson, Hettie Nichols and Annie Lou Smith.

To All Odd Fellows:

Are you true to Odd Fellowship—are you getting anything out of it?

If not, ask yourself the question, "Am I putting anything into it?"

If you do not put anything into it you cannot expect to get anything out of it.

The Independent Order of Odd Fellows is a great fraternal order.

It will make better men out of you if you will attend your lodge and help carry the good work along.

It will protect your wife and children; it will care for your widows and orphans.

We are doing a great work now. We expect to do greater things this year.

Come out tonight—come every Thursday night.

Let's be loyal to our three links, Friendship, Love and Truth. It will bind us closer together and closer to God.

Plenty of work to do every meeting night.

A cordial welcome to all visitors.

Lodge meets every Thursday night at 8 o'clock.

CALOMEL IS A DANGEROUS DRUG

Next Dose May Salivate You, Loosen Teeth or Start Rheumatism.

Calomel is mercury; quicksilver. It crashes into your bile like dynamite, cramping and sickening you. Calomel attacks the bones and should never be put into your system.

If you feel bilious, headachy, constipated and all knocked out, just go to your drugstore and get a bottle of Dodson's Liver Tonic for a few cents, which is a harmless vegetable substitute for dangerous calomel. Take a spoonful and if it doesn't start your liver and straighten you up better and quicker than nasty calomel and without making you sick, you just go back and get your money.

Don't take calomel! It makes you sick the next day; it loses you a day's work. Dodson's Liver Tonic straightens you right up and you feel great. No salts necessary. Give it to the children, because it is perfectly harmless and cannot salivate.

THE COUNTY AGENT'S COLUMN

Caponize Your Cockerels

A capon is a castrated male bird. It can best be done when the cockerel weighs about 1½ to 2 pounds, or from 2 to 3 months of age. It is a perfectly simple operation that any one can learn how to do in a short time without the loss of a single bird. There is some person in almost every neighborhood in Fulton county who has done it, and you can easily learn by watching them perform a few operations.

A capon will weigh from three to five pounds more at maturity than otherwise. They will develop faster, their flesh is better and they will sell a good deal higher than otherwise. It is a profitable business and when it becomes a general practice among poultrymen much more profit will be realized.

Some Facts About Legumes

Did you know that green manure is the most profitable form of plant food? A crop of sweet clover plowed under the second year is equal to 20 tons of stable manure applied per acre. A crop of red clover is equal to 15 tons, a crop of crimson clover to 12, a crop of Japan to 10, a crop of soybeans hogged off and the remainder plowed under is equal to 8 to 10 tons of stable manure per acre.

A ton of stable manure is worth $5. You will never have stable manure to cover your farm.

You can get the same results from green manure at a very small cost. It is the only practical way to maintain your soil fertility.

Leslie Nugent, in plowing under his patch of crimson clover, has added as much plant food as would have been added in 12 tons of good stable manure, and it has not cost him one-fifth as much as it would had he bought the manure and applied it. Follow his example. If you don't believe in it just watch his corn grow this year and other crops that follow. Don't be such a pig as to wait to keep taking away from your soil and never add anything back. You are flirting with starvation when you do that.

Spray Your Irish Potatoes

The worst pest we have is the Colorado potato beetle. It is easily controlled by an application of arsenate of lead. For small patches it can be dusted on the potatoes through a cheese cloth. The arsenate of lead should be mixed with about four times its bulk of flour and dusted onto the leaves of the potatoes. In a large patch it should be applied with a sprayer in a liquid form, using two pounds powdered arsenate of lead to 50 gallons of water.

87% Increase in Freight Rates

The railroads have not satisfied their hogish ambitions yet, as their latest move has been to revise their freight schedule on all live stock shipments south of the Ohio river. This revised schedule increases the freight rate on all live stock shipments 87%, or practically double the present rate.

This rate will hit every live stock shipper in Kentucky, whether the shipment is to a point in the state or out of it.

The Fulton County Farm Bureau is sending telegrams of protest to C. C. McChord, Chairman Interstate Commerce Commission, Washington, D. C., and to our senators and representative of this district.

Every farmer, business man and others interested should send a telegram of protest against this new outrage of the railroads.

The Quinine That Does Not Affect the Head Because of its tonic and laxative effect, LAXATIVE BROMO QUININE is better than ordinary Quinine and does not cause nervousness nor ringing in head. Remember the full name and look for the signature of E. W. GROVE, 30c.

NARROWLY ESCAPED DROWNING

S. L., the little 8-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Jackson, living at Kentucky Bend, narrowly escaped drowning in the river last Sunday morning. Early in the morning, before any one of the family was awake, he determined to visit his fishing lines on the river. He entered one of the boats and went to his lines, and in some manner, while standing up, the boat capsized, throwing little S. L. into the water. Going down the first time, he came up under the boat; the second time, coming up at the side of the boat, he seized its side and called for help. A little negro boy heard his cry and rushed to his assistance, pulling him from the water and taking him home. How the negro boy rescued him is miraculous, as neither one knew how to swim.

TO AUTOMOBILE OWNERS

I find on investigation that only ten owners of autos have paid their city license to date. Same was due May 1.
It is not our business to hunt you up,
Mr. Owner. Please go to the Hickman Bank & Trust Co. and attend to this matter. We need the money to pay for street work, etc. Failure to do so will cause you to pay additional costs. Warrants will be issued for delinquents in the near future.

ASPIRIN

Name "Bayer" on Genuine

Beware! Unless you see the name
"Bayer" on package or on tablets you are not getting genuine Aspirin prescribed by physicians for twenty-one years and proved safe by millions. Take Aspirin only as told in the Bayer package for Colds, Headaches, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Earache, Toothache, Lumbago and for Pain. Handy tin boxes of twelve Bayer Tablets of Aspirin cost few cents. Druggists also sell larger packages. Aspirin is the trade mark of Bayer Manufacture of Manneschefeldstrasse, Germany.

FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH

Sunday school, 9:45, J. W. Roney, Superintendent.

Preaching, 11 a. m. and 7:30 p. m.

The pastor having finished fifty years in the ministry, now makes a new start in life with an intense desire to grow in grace and do better work for his Master. He appeals to his brethren and friends for their most earnest sympathy and loyal support. They can do much by their prayers and presence in the Sunday school and preaching service of the church. Let us make next Lord's Day a great day.

A. S. Pettie, Pastor.
